Perhaps Port Arthur and the Democratic party will fall on the same day.

Brother Roberts speaks very highly of Judge Powers, but does he like him well enough to vote for him?

Being so close to the prophets, Chairman Spry ought to be able to make an accurate forecast of the result.

However, Congressman Howell has not used his frank on a reply to the letter sent him by Judge Powers.

If Brother Cutler is looking for places in which to put his money, perhaps the Smoot committee can show him some good ones.

If he has really violated a law, Brother Howell can prove that he is in harmony with some of the high officials of his church.

John W. Taylor does not think it proper for an apostle to take part in the campaign, especially when subpoenas are likely to be around.

As the count will be slow, Brother Cutler may have to retire Tuesday night without positive assurance that Reed Smoot has been elected Governor.

In responding to the kind offer of Mr. Cutler to lend money, some of his supporters will be reasonable enough to strike him for only a five or a ten.

Apostle Smoot will probably allow the Democratic party to get a few hundred votes in Utah county, just to show that there has been no church interference.

Recognizing that there is some force in the objection to church interference, church officials will not continue to interfere in this fight for more than three or four days more.

It is very curious to see a man like Hiram E. Booth come forward with a cooked-up, jumbled lot of figures and alleged divisions such as he made in his speech in the Mormon meeting-house in the Twentieth ward. His separations between Mormon and Gentile must have been meant as a joke, or else he is too poorly informed on the subject to undertake to speak upon it at all. The probability is that some designing scamp imposed upon him with a lot of spurious facts and figures, and he took the unworthy person's word for it without personal examination. But aside from all that, his "argument" did not touch the main point at all save to show, if all were true as he said, the deep craft of the plotters against the good name and fame of the people of Utah, and of the State itself.

IT WAS A MONSTER MEETING.

The American meeting at the Salt Lake Theater last night was the greatest meeting ever held in that structure. The seats were all filled, the stage was thronged, the space back of the seats was packed all the way around by a solid mass of standing people; the galleries were all filled, and the aisles and spaces back of the seats were thronged. If the walls of the Theater had been elastic, a few more people could have got in, but not many.

And the interest and enthusiasm! It was at white heat. The points of the speakers were caught instantly, and the wildest cheering followed the delivery of the facts and logic that the speakers poured forth abundantly.

The meeting itself is good for many thousand votes. Those who attended it and heard the truth and the record, will not fail to carry the same to their neighbors, and that will decide the votes of all who hear.

All that is needed is to bring to the attention of the people the facts; the pledge of non-interference with politics and with public affairs by the church, the constant and persistent breaking of that pledge, despite the high and manifold benefits received in consideration of it, the evident insincerity and duplicity that attended the transaction, and the people will insist that the pledge be kept, both in letter and in spirit.

The speakers were at their best, as indeed they could not fail to be in addressing such a magnificent audience. It was the record meeting not only of the campaign, but of all the years, in this State.

THE EAGLE SCREAMS.

Suppose that some Mormon newspaper published in the rural districts were to say at conference time: "The Angel Moroni will be made to scream until the mountains vibrate with the shrill shrieks and the everlasting hills will echo with the discord."

Would not the Deseret News and all the authorities of the church think that sacrilege had been committed? The editor or writer of such a Mormon newspaper would immediately be called upon the carpet, and asked to explain why he spoke in such profanation of an object of veneration regard to the Mormon faith. He might answer that he referred only to the statue on the Temple tower and that his utterance was merely to be taken in a Pickwickian sense. But would he not be disciplined? Would not his fellows of the faith shrink from him? Would he not be deemed either an apostate or such a senseless fool of a joker that he could not be accepted in decent Mormon society?

The American people are now in their general conference time which comes not every six months, but every four years, concerning matters of grave importance to them; and the Deseret News uses this language editorially: "The American Eagle would be made to scream until the mountains would vibrate with the shrill shrieks and the everlasting hills would echo with the discord."

Has the man who wrote that one single decent sentiment of Americanism in his soul? The American eagle is as real as the Angel Moroni. What it represents and typifies is as sacred and dear to eighty-two millions of American citizens—minus the owners and editor of the Deseret News—as is the vision which the statue of Moroni typifies, dear and sacred to the Mormon people.

It is only a little thing, but it serves to show the entire contempt in which the Deseret News editor and its proprietors hold this Government, its sacred traditions, and the emblems which the people have chosen to represent all that is dear to them in the institution of freedom.

No American, no one but an alien at heart, could call the scream of the American eagle a discord. The man who thinks that the majestic cry is less than sublime harmony, should move or be moved to some other country.

WHAT THE CHURCH HOPED.

The church organ, the Deseret News, gave expression recently to lamentations at the development of this campaign. "It was hoped," says the organ, "when the present campaign was commenced in this State, that it would be a fair contest of parties; that the only personalities indulged in would be a comparison of the qualifications of the respective candidates; and that false reports, scurrility, distortions of facts and figures, defamation of character, libel, license, and lampooning would be entirely avoided."

Undoubtedly, the church hope was that its secure count of both the Republican and Democratic parties would be undisturbed; it knew that there would be no question in that case, of the pledge-breaking of the church leaders; no arraignment of Smootism, no question but that the Lord's agents would have the undisputed sway in the nominations of both parties, and that the church headquarters would be allowed as usual to say "thumbs up" to the one party and "thumbs down" to the other, and no outcry raised.

But the thing got too odorous; the people couldn't stand it. The church not only showed its hand, but it sustained an Apostle in making such a wanton, oppressive use of the church power, in the nomination of a man for Governor who on his own merits could not have received the votes of a dozen delegates, that the people rose in revolt and wrath.

It would have been a nice, easy bit of play-acting, such as we have seen altogether too much of in the campaigns in this State hitherto, if the church dictation had been quietly acquiesced in and both parties had gone on with a make-believe fight, both knowing that the real power that would decide the battle would decide it in its own way, and without the slightest regard to the work of the partisans in the ostensible campaign.

That would have been fine, would it not? It would have been a campaign with the real thing left out. Both party speakers would have been beating the air with vain words, the church leaders would have passed the effective word a day or two before the election, and all would have been lovely.

But the American party grew to stall-wart proportions out of opposition to just that sort of thing. It is an intolerable condition to see and to suffer under in any American commonwealth. It was besides, a clear violation of pledged faith for the church leaders to assume this dictatorship. It was also a clear and plain violation of their own rule, adopted in the general conference of their church, and a violation of the Constitution, which forbids the interference of any church with the affairs of the State.

But the News rehearses again its venomous and altogether false assertion that there has been a flood of vilification and abuse poured out upon the Mormons in this campaign in this State. We have heretofore denied this; it is altogether false. We deny it now, and say that no one but a moral pervert would or could continue the assertion of such a falsehood. The News has been asked time and again to show what there has been of this, and where and by whom; but it remains dumb on that exhibit, and this for the very good reason that there is nothing of the sort possible for it to produce.

The fact is, that the abuse and vilification has been altogether by the News, which has not hesitated to say that the members of the American party are not respectable people. It held some up to opprobrium as non-taxpayers and has sneered at and spoken scoffingly of those it wished to belittle personally for no reason save that they helped in the organization of the American party. And no one who keeps in mind the movements and statements of the times can fail to remember the foul libels and personal assaults the News printed against Walter J. Meeks for no reason other than that he was active last spring in the movement to repudiate President Smith's claim that the people here condoned his polygamous living.

In view of the facts, it is an added impertinence for the News, with its record of libel and abuse of good men, its assault upon the ministers of this State, and upon Christian people generally, to cry out at this late day against abuse and vilification, to both of which it is so keenly and so constantly addicted. And it is a gross mendacity for it to claim this abuse and vilification against the Mormon people, when it cannot produce one word or one instance in proof of its willfully false and indecent accusation.

THE CHURCH NOT IN POLITICS!

The church meeting at Circleville on Sunday supplied another proof of the strictness with which the Mormon church leaders refrain from exercising control in politics. It appears that M. M. Steele, the first counselor to the Platte stake presidency, seized the occasion to bolster up the political fortunes of Bishop Peterson, who is running for the Legislature in that county, on the Republican ticket.

The bishop, it appears, is obnoxious to a portion of the Republicans there, who left the convention when he was nominated, and are opposing him at the polls. Counselor Steele, therefore visited the wrath of the Lord upon those "bolters," saying that men who do not vote their ticket straight will be looked on as traitors; and he took occasion to remind the sheepmen that the Democratic nominee for Representative was hostile to them, and to "counsel" them not to vote for men who are not friendly to their interests. This hostility of the Democratic candidate it appears, was shown by his prosecution before County Attorney of sheepmen for befouling the streams that the people had to use for culinary and potable purposes.

Counselor Steele, continuing his parable, is reported to have called attention to the fact that President Joseph F. Smith is a Republican, and Brother Winder, he understood, is a Democrat. And he continues: "Now, I want to give the people a key to tell whether the church is in politics or not; if the brethren at conference discussed the political situation and indicated what the people should do, then the people would know their mind and will."

That is plain enough certainly; it indicates with sureness that such a tip is expected from the conference, and that the people are willing to carry out "the mind and will" of the apostolic dominance, if only they can find out what it is. Counselor Steele furnished them the key whereby they could unlock this information. And surely there is no lack this year of apertures which that key will fit. The "mind and will" of the ecclesiastical is so apparent that no one needs to run to keep the transparency in sight.

President Cannon, following Counselor Steele, indorsed all that he said, without qualification or reservation. It follows, therefore, that the "mind and will" of the authorities of the Platte stake is that Bishop James Peterson be sustained for the lower house of the Legislature, and that his Democratic opponent has been set apart for defeat in the minds of the presidency of that stake. It is well to have the air cleared once in a while, and to find out precisely "where we are at" in this great campaign in which one party asserts the meddling dominance of the church ecclesiastical in the politics and public affairs of the people, and two parties (for vote-getting purposes only) deny it. But the Democratic candidate for the Legislature in Platte county bolts his party's position on this question, as it is quite natural that he should do. He sees the church influence, as plain as a pikestaff.

THE MEETING AT EUREKA.

The largest meeting ever held in Eureka, it is agreed on all hands, was the meeting of Thursday evening which was addressed by the Hon. Frank J. Cannon and the other American party speakers.

It was a genuine American meeting, full of enthusiasm, patriotism, and deep in the conviction that free speech was the inalienable right of every citizen. When the interruptions came in the form of protestations for the Mormon view of things, there was nothing but courtesy, and those who interrupted were shown the errors of their ways of thinking in a wholesome way that was good to see.

The American speakers are glad to have the audience ask questions, deny positions, and in other ways show that the people are alive to the great issue which is the paramount one in this State, so long as all is done civilly and intelligently. So far there has been nothing to complain of on this score, and the interruptions always help the speaker's case.

The live Americans of Eureka are thoroughly aroused, and will give an excellent account of themselves toward the American ticket on Tuesday next.
